TITUSVILLE, Pa., March 12.—Several year ago an old Indian chief died in Pittsburg, and on his death bed called his friends around him, informing them that at a certain dis-tance from a point below Titusville, where Pine and Oil creeks form a junction, lies buried in a cave a vast amount of gold coins and valuables, placed there by a French colony at the time the French army held possession of these lands. Among the listeners was George Brinton. For months he hunted, and finally had given up all hope of inding either the opening to the cave or the cold, afterwards moving his family away. formerly resided here, and in an old diary just found states that he and a companion discovered an entrance to a cave two leagues east of his log-cabin home. They entered the opening and found stone steps leading down towards a second chamber. The men had crawled through the last hole, inding a large spacious cavern, when, hearing heavy growling coming from within, their pine-knot light being extinguished, they made a hasty exit. This story now coming to light has awakened interest among believers, and many townspeople are investigating. As soon as the snow goes off lively times are anticipated.

THE HOUSE IN SESSION.

The Vote Defeating the Appellate Cou Bill Reconsidered-Various Unimportant Measures Under

At the opening of the session of the hou this morning Mr. Sears moved that the senate be requested to return the bill, which had attorneys shall receive no fees in ca pleas of guilty are entered. Mr. Robinson the author of the bill, opposed the motion saying that there was a strong lobby here working against the bill, and it was now proposed to call it back, spend more time over it and thus delay and endanger its passage. The motion prevailed however and the bill was called back.

resolution, entered on Saturday, to reconsider the vote by which the appellate court bill was defeated, and this was carried by a vote of 40 to 37, and 300 copies of the bill were ordered printed. During the statement of the question, Mr. Gooding, who was as usual confused about the correct parliamentary procedure, said: "We want fair play from the speaker, and will insist upon hav-ing it." Mr. Browning and others were on their feet in a minute calling for "order, order," and insisting that the gentleman from Hancock (Gooding) was reflecting upon the speaker's integrity, and that his should be taken down. Speaker Jewett said he would rely upon the sentiment of the house for an indorsement of his course whether or not on this matter it had not been alto gether fair and impartial. Mr. Gooding, see ing that he had no following, arose to a ques tion of privilege, and disclaimed any intention of reflecting upon the speaker, declaring that he had said "We want fair play, Mr Speaker," and not "from the speaker," and the matter was allowed to drop.

Mr. Pendleton offered a resolution that when the house adjourned this afternoon, it should be until Monday morning, and the was carried by a vote of 48 to 24.

The regular order of business was then resumed, and the first bill taken up was that of Mr. Overman, providing that taxes on mortgages on real estate shall be paid by the mortgageor, and that the mortgagee shall pay taxes only on the assessed value of his land, less the amount of the incumbrance. Twenty or more members discussed the bill at considerable length, many of them arguing that if enacted, it would not afford the relief desired.

It was defeated, the vote being 42 to 34.

Mr. Rivers's bill, providing that county offices shall be declared vacant when the officers thereof shall have been absent from them, without good excuse, for sixty days, was called up, and Mr. Reeves moved to re-commit it to the judiciary committee, with instructions to make certain amend-ments. He explained that the bill was meant to affect only one person, Jeffer-son Clemmer, the recorder of Johnson county, who had abandoned his office, which was now filled by his brother, who had paid off as to exempt this case from its pro was now competently filled by a man who had sacrificed his private fortune to pay the debts of an erring brother. Of these five cases, two of the gentlemen are prominent in the profession, and one of them particularly so." Seeing that the reporter was interested, the same attorney, addressing him personally, added, "What would you do in such a case?" The reporter suggested the advisability of appearing before the circuit court with a motion for the delinquents to show cause why they should not be debarred, also a procedure looking to criminal proscution. "Yes, and get yourself disliked by the bar," was the rejoinder, "for it would be said that you were trying to drag down someone to make room for yourself. No sir. I simply wrote the parties the status in which I found their claims, and there it still rests." The reporter called for additional data on the alleged delinquents, but it was not forthcoming, the practitioner shaking his head and walking off, as if fearful the secret might slip from him; but there was enough in what he had already said to recall the fact that "this is a great world, and the more it is analyzed, the more it swells." Of these five cases, two of the gentlemen are

A new father was complaining to two acquaintances, heads of populous families, of the inefficacy of all soothing syrups in subduing his querulous heir. His brow was haggard, and dull care was sitting so heavily upon him that even the motion of the East Washington street car couldn't jolt it off. "Give the little fellow paragorie," to be afraid to dose mine, but now, when one gets colicky, I fill him full of this cure-all

"Don't you do it," interposed the other friend. "Nothing can be worse for babies than paragoric. It puts 'em to sleep because it makes 'em drunk. What you want to do with that kid, instead of pacing a bent with him, and stopping only to dose him, is to set down with him, set him out on the bony end of your knee and jolt him-jolt him hard-and he will soon get quiet, for he can't cry if

"That won't do," put in a fat man who spoke with the authority which experience gives. "Jolting will give the baby s disease. There's only one thing to do crying babies. Feed 'em until they are plumb full, and then hang 'em over the window sill or the back of a chair. In this position they adjust the amount of milk to heir requirements.

Then hold its feet close to the fire, while you gently rub its hands and arms. Now administer catnip and other teas and hold the baby by the heels until it can spit the tea out. All medicine works best when thrown out. Then walk the floor backwards and run forwards rapidly, so that the baby will feel the exhilaration of the movement. By this time it will be daylight, and the relief corps of day nurses will be on hand, and you can go down town to business hand, and you can go down town to business feeling refreshed and vigorous like a man who has done his duty."

The Appellate Court.

Judge Byron K. Elliott, of the supreme court in speaking of the proposed measure for the relief of that court, is of the opinion that Indianapolis should have an appellate court, of which the sheriff and clerk of the supreme court should be officers ex officio. Judge Elliott thought that the McCullough bill, diriding the state into three districts, with nine judges, would be preferable to no relief at all. Judge Howk is hostile to the McCullough bill. Judge Zollars regards an appellate court as indispensable, if the commission is not to be continued, and should be so constituted that its decisions shall be fined in certain classes of cases. He

LEASE SURRENDER

THE L. D. & S. ABANDONE!

The I. R. & W. Hoper to Enter St. Louis the Narrow Gauge—President galls Draws Out of the Pools

It can be reliably stated to-day that Indiana, Bloomington & Western road abandon its fifty-year lease of the Indian abandon its fifty-year lease of the Indialis, Decatur & Springfield line, as rifor some-weeks past. The lease was three years ago, the I., B. & W. guing $200,000 rental per annum. The line, it is claimed, has been operations of nearly $60,000 per year to the revenue derived being barely enables. worked more for its target local business, and it will be seen from statement below that the purposes for a statement below that the purpose for a statement below the st Atkins, secretary of the I., D. & Secondary, are in the city to-day having met here for the purpos of arranging the details under which the I., D. & S. is to be transferred to the second mortgage bondholders, who are managing the property. Mr. Hammond and party at a o'clock this morning went out over the road to inspect the property, it being one of the conditions of the lease that the lessor should receive the road and equipment in as good condition as when the transfer was made to the I., B. & W. The I., D. & S. party will return to this city to-night for the consummation of the matter in hand.

Mr. Campbell, when interrogated with reference to the lease, said:

"The directors of the two properties have been negotiating for some months and have arrived at an amicable agreement under which the I., D. & S. will be turned over to yet to be arranged but the remainder of the lease has already been assented to."

"Do you abandon the lease in the hope or with the purpose of securing the I. D. & S. by purchase or otherwise?"

"Not at all. It is a bona fide transfer of the property to the owners will themselves operate the road. There will probably be some traffic agreement between the I. E. & W. and I. D. & S. but this is a matter for "Both parties to the agreement consent that it is an unfair one, and its abrogat that it is an unfair one, and its abrogation was, therefore, amicably agreed upon. Both the L., D. & S. and the L., B. & W. understood at the time the lease was made that the L., D. & S. was to be extended to St. Louis, and we secured it for the purpose of obtaining a through line to that city. But times changed; money was hand to get, and the proposed extension was necessarily abandoned for the time being. Now we have another plan of reaching St. Louis. The L., B. & W. hope to bid in the Toledo, Cincinnati & St. Louis narrow gauge, or the western portion of it, and if this is done, by making it a standard gauge west from Veedersburg, on as standard gauge west from Veedersburg, our Peoria division, we will have a go route to St. Louis, and it becomes our Peoria division, we will have a good route to St. Louis, and it becomes no longer as object to control the I., D. & S. If we secure the T., C. & L., of course there will be no necessity for us to build an extension; is we do not obtain the narrow gauge, we can afterwards make arrangements for the extension of I., D. & S., or we can build into St. Louis from our Peoria division."

Fhe I. D. & S. is to take possession of its property at once, or as soon as the details of the arrangement can be perfected. There will be general rejoicing over the transfer of the property, as it will be made a local road, and its business will be worked more to the advantage of the city. The I. B. & W. have been obliged to cut down the expense of operating it to that degree that that pense of operating it to that degree the accommodation of its patrons ha largely curtailed. It is not yet kno the general officer will be. J. V. MeNet local general agent can have any position the operation of the road that he deal The I., B. & W. has paid its rental u January 1, and will promptly meet amount due for the months of January, I ruary and part of March.

AFTER awhile, perhaps, the office seekers may give the new president a rest, but so far the major part of his time has been taken up with the stream of callers that

THE English government has already made a grant of $20,000 for the benefit of Gordon's family. In this country it required a regular campaign and all the at-tributes of a national scandal, to get a national recognition of our great war hero.

Ir begins to look as if England was in for a war with Russia. Russia is so big-a continen rather than a country-and so much tside of civilization, that her intentions are almost as much a matter of guess work as those of China, or any other country where the modern methods of life do not prevail.

It is foreshadowed, let us hope correctly, that the new administration will make apnts only to vacancies in office as they occur by law, refusing to enter upon the corrupting policy of arbitrary removals. This plan will require a long time to fill out Mr. Hendricks's "50,000 offices," but in the end it will be the best. A wholesale Jacksonian program of removal would so disgust the country that four years from now would witness a violent reaction.

THE legislature has not made a handsom secord. Everything in the nature of spoils within reach has been seized and a little extra created. The legal number of officers has been exceeded, spittoon-eleaners paid five dollars a day, and forgery itself not wanting as an illustration of the fruition of spoils-mongering. Gross injustice has been perpetrated in disfranchising a large part of vote of the state for supposed political advantage. No man knows the condition of the state treasury, the charitable institutions of the state are mismanaged in defiance of the law, the real dulies of the legislature are repudiated, and time wasted in order to force extra session, which, at an expense of $50,000, will yield the money-grabbing members thereof $6 per day and whatever "picksn't a very different sort from this one, we mistake the temper of the time.

It is reported that the president will shortly issue a manifesto to the office-seekers which, in effect, and in popular parlance, will say "git!" That it will announce the on of his administration to stand by civil service reform in letter and spirit. If this shall prove true, no more momentous departure will have been made in this govrerment since Lincoln wrote the emancipaclamation. . To give the death stroke to the spoils system which such a stand as this by a democratic administration would be, would be the greatest stride toward rightdedness and morality since human lavery was abolished. The thievery of the off the silver-dollar swindle and the moolistic land-grabbing, are small things beaide this all-pervading corruption, the lust of office which prostitutes and debauches public trust and poisons the mind of the

The Snobbish State Department.

As an offset to the sneers at the report of the selection by Secretary Bayard of John Cadwallader, of New York, as his assistant, who was assistant secretary of state under Hamilton Fish, because Cadwallader is spoken of as representing one of the oldest English families in this country and as coned with the English aristocracy, be it recorded that Mr. Bayard has ordered the reoval of the partition of spiked bars markne the division between the navy and state ertments in the new public building occupied jointly by them with the war department. The plain people of this country perepartment at Washington consider themthe employes of the government, but such is the fact. The inate snobbery of American character is so strong that merely to be emloyed in a department of the government, ers," so influences these fools that they actsometimes resent the questioning of accounts by the auditor in treasury department. They, forthey regard it as impertinen ney expend money. So in the large buildne where the war and navy, as well as state ent, are, the employes of the latter, chief or subordinate, have erected a whether chief or subordinate, have erected a siling cutting off the corridors so that the oly end thereof devoted to the state department shall not be profaned by the presence f mere naval or war office employes. The sw secretary has ordered this impudent twision line obliterated. To demolish this is small act, but it is no smaller than and just as guifeant as the spirit which dictated its erection, and it is all on the side of republican simplicity and common sense. Give us

REPORT TO THE

An "Alien" Advantage.

Aliens in Indiana are given the right to vote, and is not that as great a privilege as to hold land? We invite aliens to settle among us, we give them all the rights of citizens, and place the ballot in their hands on a mere declaration that they intend to become citizens by naturalization at some future time; why, then, should we refuse them the right to secure permanent homes?—[Richmond Palladium.

Were our esteemed contemporary's knowledge according to zeal, there were no need to call its attention to the fact that it has answered itself when it says "we give aliens the rights of citizens when they declare their intention of becoming citizens," i. e.: when aliens are in intention no longer aliens, but citizens, they have a citizen's rights. So be it. The "monstrous thing" which provoked our contemporary's astonishment was the following law:

Natural persons who are aliens, whether they reside in the United States or any foreign country, may acquire land and enjoy real estate, and may convey, devise, mortage or otherwise incumber the same, in like manner, and with the same effect as citizens of this state.

Is this not monstrous? Aliens-mark the word-could by this law have all the rights citizens have. Aliens-members of foreign governments and non-residents in this country-could buy up the soil of the state, escape every responsibility of citizenship except taxes, live abroad, and take out of the country all the earnings of the land which they were possessed with. Does not our contemporary see a difference in this flows through the White House at the between the case of aliens who come here, who swear they intend to remain, and contribute by their labor and their presence to the growth of the country, become part of it to maintain and defend it, and people who live and owe allegiance elsewhere? We are sure our contemporary sees this and rejoices with us that the monstrous law which granted away to foreign landlordism the right to monopolize our soil, and so make an Ireland of Indiana, is annulled, and let us hope, annulled forever.

England in Egypt.

For a time, at least, the prospective trouble with Russia absorbs English opinion and attracts the attention of the world as to probable English action, to the exclusion of the situation in Egypt. The complete collapse for the present of the campaign against the Mahdi is admitted. Gen. Brackenbury's retreat to Korti will shortly be followed by the withdrawal of Lord Wolseley's headquarters to Dongola, and no offensive operations on the Nile will be undertaken before autumn, a report from London to the New York Tribune says. What future movements may be, must be left to the future, of course; and equally of course they will be largely determined by the Anglo-Russian relations. If England has to fight in Afghan she will hardly fight in Egypt; at least not at the same time. What she may do in Egypt in her own time is her own affair, modified by the influence other powers may have; but the world has a moral judgment on England's course in Egypt, and it is very simple and plain. England has undertaken to support the government of Egypt's ruler. If she elects to carry that support to the point of subjugating the Soulan and bringing that region within the influence of civilization—something no Egyptian khediye has yet succeeded in entirely doing-there will be moral acquiescence. But if she means simply to push her soldiery into the Soudan for a war for vengeance berole of Don Quixote in the nineteenth century and was killed for his pains, she should meet with moral condemnation. Gordon took the sword with his eyes open and perished by the sword. Nothing, so far as the defenders of their native country did, was done against him except in open and honorable warfare. If he was killed by the Soudanese, it was in the assault against Khartoum, a fair and honorable battle. If he was killed by his own troops, that was treachery for which his enemies can not be held responsible by any program of "yengeance." Gordon waged warfare against the Soudanese and was killed, just as General Stewart was killed. If England chooses to go ahead and conquer the enemy who has thus far got the best of her, well and good; but the talk of "hanging the ringleaders," "avenging Gordon," and then abandoning the Soudan, is the talk of savages and announces an action on the plane of savagery. If England undertakes it, the condemnation of civilization should be brought to bear upon her in a way that will make her halt. She should not be allowed to claim all the rights of civilized warfare for herself, and visit upon the "damniggers," which is the English definition of the treatment of pirates. He Wanted an Easy One.

And wait and watch as the day wanes on—
But the angels we meant to call are gone!

"Una-ble to lie down, I passed through all my sickness in an easy chair. My body died several times. I, that is, my spirit, would go away from it, and standing in an opposite corner of the room would look back at the flesh and blood in the chair and wonder how I was ever induced to pass so many years in its company. 'Poor old body,' I thought, your troubles are nearly over. They will soon put you away under the ground where soon put you away under the ground where you will be at rest forever.' I saw my family gather about my old frame as it leaned back, dead, in the chair, and it gave me pain to see them weep. Then I would feel something pulling me toward my body again; I could not resist it; I was powerless; and in a moment I had taken possession of it. Then, there was an instant of pain, and I opened my eyes and breathed. Each time this was repeated I was more reductant to peturn to my body."

cial Incongruities—John Kelly Bro Down—The Cardinal and Tony Hart—Jealous Actresses Keen Competition.

[Correspondence of the Indianapolis News.] NEW YORK, March 9.—Cats and dogs have been known to lie down amicably together, but not at feeding time, for they can not restrain their natural antipathy over viands. Now, man seems to be different. alongside his bitterest foe. A curious sight at the Lotos Club, the other night, was Whitelaw Reid presiding at a dinner, with the mayor and an ex-mayor, both of whom he had roundly berated in his paper, at his sides, and the relations between those two guests were so disagreeable, ordinarily, that one was at the bottom of a legal proceeding intended to send the other to prison. Never-theless, the trio ate and drank heartily, theress, the trio are and drank heartily, r ade jolly speeches, and to the outward seeming, were hail fellows well met—though the mayors really did not address each other, except in the formal greeting at the outset.

The incongruities of grouped men are often curious, too. At about the time when the Tammany excursionists to Washington may be presumed to have begun the crimson-ing of the capital, I saw their chief, John Kelly, walking slowly on Fifth avenue. His alarmingly bad health had prevented him from making the trip with his faction, and he was out for the morning walk which his physicians advise. Mr. Kelly is physically broken down. Whether he will ever regain that robust vigor which used to be the solid acking of his political feats and perversity is an open question. There is no denying his present inability. His nervous energy is ne, and he is forbidden by the doctors to do the slightest thing in the way of business or politics. He is trying hard to obey he order and I found that while unwilling to talk about the new administration, he was anxious to learn everything possible on the subject. Here is one assertion which he did make: "I have not signed anything for a single seeker of office at the hands of Mr.

"Have you been asked by many to do so?" inquired.

He gazed at me in the sort of silence which beautiful heiress might affect on being sked if she had received any offers of mariage. Then he wended his way to-where do you suppose? An entire square in Fifth venue at Fiftieth street is now covered with the ornate marble architecture of the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Patrick. church itself has two annexes, each big and handsome enough to hold its own when com-pared with the Vanderbilt and other notably ne residences close by. One of these is the ome of Cardinal McCloskey. The ecclesiastical state in which this venerable prince of the church exists is hardly known outside the walls. His establishment has all the ceremonial formalities which are characteristic of cardinals' promises elsewhere in the world. There is a private chapel as complete in eauty and appointments as though intended for public use, instead of being devoted exclusively to Cardinal McCloskey. His spiritual and temporal officers and retinue are numerous. The manners and customs of royal court are carefully maintained. The Cardinal is very rarely indeed visible to outof age, for he has passed his seventy-fifth birthday, but more than that to the maintenance of potentate dignity. In person, he is the ideal of what a cardinal ought to be spare, grave, kindly, though frosty, and in no whit suggestive of earthliness. Now, John Kelly is by no means the rude, uncultured, low-down politician which many sup-pose him to be, but an educated gentleman, with distinctly refined instincts; and yet his face and his calling are such that, when I saw him enter the cardinal's house (a privileged visitor, because he is a nephew of McCloskey by marriage) the strong contrast which must be presented by him sitting familiarly across the table from the venerable prelate struck me vividly in imagination. Just then a man who really looked as though he belonged in the Cardinal's household, and might appropriately hold some spiritual office close to his Highness' person, lighted from the carriage and rang the doorell. He was about thirty years old, his igure was smoothly rounded after the manner which painters are accustomed to give to priests, and his clean shaven face harmonized thoroughly with that conceit. Was he the Cardinal's chaplain? Hardly. At least strel and Irish comedian. He used to be, in boyhood, in a churchly institution, but it was of a reformatory rather than worshipful character. My first recollection of him is as the petticoat member of the "Little Fraud" couple of variety show singers and dancers, Harrigan and Hart. His dimpled, round face, his pleasant voice and his grace of movement made him successful in skirts. Then the pair went into theatrical managenent, and the celerity with which they have accumulated fortunes is a marvel of the amusement business. Harrigan is a saver of money. He lives over in the unfashionable Ninth ward, and is credited with the possession of a quarter of a million. Hart is far more luxurious. He has a handsome residence right in the neighborhood of swelldom, his wife is dressed magnificently, and in every way he is an enjoyer of life as he goes along. His errand to the Cardinal-into whose pres ence, however, he was not admitted—had connection with his subscription to the fund to pay for the marble bust of his Eminence, which has been a recent gift.

Speaking of personal appearance, there is in the current melodrama at the Union Square theater a mother who is younger than her daughter, so far as the spectator can judge. Moreove, r according to the story of the play, the parent has had a dreadful time of it for fifteen or twenty years, and is alling to such an extent that her life is despaired. of. On the opening aight her hair was gray, and her face, had some deep lines of suffering, but those marks of wear and tear have disappeared, and now she appears a blooming girl of twenty, while her daughter seems several years older. The explanation is simple. The two actresses are Sara Jewett and Maud Harrison, for a long time intense rivals on the same stage. It is a ticklish subject for conjecture but I grass that Sara rivals on the same stage. It is a ticklish subject for conjecture, but I guess that Sara is rather older than Maud, but her face is such that behind the foot-lights, when both are grease-painted in the deftest style to present the aspect of youth, she looks the younger. Should she not only personate Maud's mother, but be appropriately her senior by two decades? Never, never. Art be blowed! She might do it on the occasion of the newspaper critie's presence, but not of the newspaper critic's presence, but not habitually. No threats of pains and pen-alties have altered her determination. She nightly beats her rival in youthfulness.

One of the most frequent of the questions that are sent in to the New York newspaper offices is the one asking whether a lad from the country can succeed in the city. It is asked usually by some youngster who has ambition to get away from the hamlet in which he has spent the eighteen years of his life, and who is groping blindly for information and advice. The newspapers receive so many questions of one sort or another that. tion and advice. The newspapers receive so many questions of one sort or another that, as a rule, it becomes necessary to make it someone's business to answer them. The usual answer to this query is to the effect that nineteen out of twenty of the successful men in New York city came from the country, and that success depends not on where a boy was born, or reared, or educated, but on what he can do. The great trouble for a young man from the country is to get a start—a chance to show of what stuff he is made. The lawyers' offices, the newspaper sanctums, the pulpits, the wall street offices, are recruited with country boys, but for all that, it is very hard for a country boy to get an introduction or a start. There are a hundred applicants for every vacancy. The managing editor of The Sun, Mr. Lord, told me the other day that he had an average of three applications in person from journalists and four or five more by letter every day, for work as reporters or editors. Mr. Bowers, the city editor of the Tribune, said recently that fully twenty men called on him in the course of every week, to ask for work. Mr. Elihu Root, himself a successful lawyer, thinks that the well known lawyers have two applications a day on the average from young men the well known lawyers have two applica-tions a day on the average from young men who wish to become lawyer's clerks with a view of practicing when they will be able to do so. Further inquiry led to the discovery that there is in the stores and broker's offices and the banks, the physicians and dentists, the photographers' rooms, and in the railroad offices a constant and perpetual stream of ap-plicants for work. Of course not one in one hundred is employed. The tendency of pro-vincial journalists to desire to come to New York is natural for the reason that the New York York newspapers pay much better wages. If a smart, bright young fellow makes a mark in the country he desires to get to the city where his talent will be felt, and where he can make headway up the ladder of fame. As a rule such make the best men on the metropolitan press, and the workers on where he can make headway up the ladder of fame. As a rule such make the best men on the metropolitan press, and the workers on well-khown newspapers are nearly all country bred. Of the Sun's staff only one man of merit was brought up in this city. Of the Tribune's, not any; and of the Times's two only, and they are on the reportorial staff. In the law, the proportion is very much greater. Hardly a distinguished member of the bar spent his boyhood here. The railroad men too, were mostly clear-headed country boys when they began work. It is is in old established mercantile concerns and among importers and wholesale houses, where the business has been handed from father to son, that the successful and wealthy New York boys are to be found.

In New York, more than elsewhere, a youngster starting on nothing and on a small salary, must push himself along on his merits. He must have industry, application, push, sobriety, and a thousand and one good points, or some one is going to run right over him sand leave him sching. If he leave even points, or some one is going to run right over him and leave him behind. If he lags even while walking in Broadway, some one will him and leave him behind. If he lags even while walking in Broadway, some one will tread on his he.ls. He has to meet the sharpest competitors to be found on the continent, no matter what his occupation. If he can push his way toward the top of his profession he will command a very large sum of money. There are lawyers who can make $25,000 a year from their profession, and there are railroad men who command an equal sum. There are physicians who make much more money, and there are many dentists who collect $20,000. A half-score of editors receive $10,000 or more, and there of editors receive $10,000 or more, and there of editors receive $10,000 or more, and there are several men on the leading newspapers who earn one hundred dollars a week. But in all these vocations the great mass of the workers get yery much less money. The managing clerk in a lawyer's office, and he is the man on whom falls the bulk of the routine work, gets from $1,500 to $3,000 a year only. The average physician and dentist makes $2,500 to $4,000. Bookkeepers average from $1,200 to $1,500, and salesmen in from $1,200 to $1,500, and salesmen wholesale houses $2,500 to $3,000, althou of the latter class there are those who er as high as $8,000 and $10,000. Editor as high as $8,000 and $10,000. Editorial writers receive $60 to $80, and the best $100 a week. Managing editors $100 to $150; copy revisers $30 to $50, and first-grade reporters the same. All the tendency in newspaper offices is toward lower salaries. Advertising is very poor this winter, and the competition in consequence of the reduction of the big newspapers to two cents is very start and expression. The the reduction of the big newspapers to two cents is very sharp and expensive. The losses are coming out of the salaries of reporters and sub-editors. It takes a long time to work up to a good salary in any of the professions here. Practice comes slow to lawyers and physicians on the start. A young man opened a law office in lower Broadway some time ago, and for eleven months not a soul went to obtain his services. He sat in his office all day. He saw the seasons come and go. He was a He sat in his office all day. He saw the seasons come and go. He was a comparative stranger here, and few knew of his existence. He had no faculty for making acquaintances, and no means of getting into society. He might as well have hung out a shingle in the wilds of Sahara or from the north pole. He went back to the northern part of New York state, and is getting on. The great element of success for lawyers, physicians and professional men, here in New York, is ability to make a host of acquaintance, and then to obtain their business confidence. If you cannot accomplish that, you may as well stay away from the metropolis. Social position and the run of clubs and drawing rooms and intercourse with men will certainly bring good business to men of merit—but without business merit it goes for nothing. Humbug goes for little among the business men of New York, and men without merit rarely succeed. KINK.

The President's Business Idea. [Washington special.]
In a letter written since the election, Presi dent Cleveland said he regarded his election as a purely brainess affair. The people were to pay him $50,000 a year to attend to their business, and he proposed to look to their in-terests as a lawyer would look to the inter-ests of a client who had paid the retaining

If Cleveland by repeated snubbing could crush out the clerical frauds who try to make profit out of their churches by making them fashionable centers to catch toadying gawks, he would deserve praise from every sensible person as a successful fool-killer.

STREET CAR MANNERS.

A Woman Foreibly Presents the Other Side of the Question.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News
May I be allowed to record myself that rare and angelic being whose existence The News recently doubted, viz the woman who stops the street cars for men. I have repeatedly pulled the strap in behalf of some belated lord of creation, who appeared at a distance wildly shouting and waving his arms and legs without attracting the attention of the driver of the car. In some instances I have received very gentlemanty acknowledgement of my services; in others no such courtesy has been extended. A most exerciating experience of the latter kind befelf me recently on North Illinois street. I was sole innust of the street ear; the driver was gazing meditatively at the moon, or the place where it ought to be; a large, fat man loomed up on a side street, madly gesticulating for the car to stop. I rang the bell; the fat man entered the car, and I joy to chronicle in behalf of my much abused sex; that he sat down and stared at me without even saying "turkey gobblar," being evidently of the opinion that it was a woman's place to be in a street car and ring the bell for fat men who wanted to get ou. I said "turkey gobbler," being evidently of the opinion that it was a woman's place to be in a street car and ring the bell for fat men who wanted to get ou. I said "turkey gobbler," being evidently of the opinion that it was a woman's place to be in a street car and ring the bell for fat men who wanted to get ou. I said "turkey gobbler," however (to myself), and many other things of a very uncomplimentary nature to the fat man. I pronounced him a beast without very solider, however (to myself), and many other things of a very uncomplimentary nature to the fat man. I pronounced him a beast without very of him. It is unfair to put the burden of bad manners on street cars, crossings, or elsewhere, on either sex alone. Human nature is variegated, and men, and women as well, are ill-mannered in proportions of the latter of the driver was a

In this case the petition of the administrator averred that his intestate owned the fee; the appellees answered this petition, the court tried the issue and erred in finding, that, as matter of fact, the intestate did own the land. There was jurisdiction, but a wrong decision. As there was jurisdiction, nothing but a direct attack can be made on the judgment (91 Ind. 27; Freeman judg. sec. 116).

JUDGMENT FOR COSTS—EXEMPTION.

12169. The state ex rel. vs. Andrew J. McIntesh. Washington C. C. Affirmed. Howk, J. An execution for costs was issued against the relator in lection where there was an appeal from a survey. The relator sought to have his property exempt from execution as against these costs. The debt for which the execution issued was a debt for costs, and those costs were shown not to be an insidens even of any debt growing out of rounded on any contract, express of implied. Costs made in a statutory proceeding are not founded on a contract of any kind, and as to them the statute of exemption does not apply (5 Ind., 54; 34 Ind., 54; 56 Ind., 173; 96 Ind., 444.)

The Western League Schedule.
Messrs Watkins, Loftus and Sullivan, the schedule committee of the Western base ball schedule committee of the Western base ball league, have agreed upon an arrangement of games. The Milwaukee club will open the league season here April 18, to he followed by St. Paul, Kansas City, Cleveland and Toledo, in the order named, each club playing a series of five games. The home club will start upon their first trip May 2d, visiting St. Paul, Milwaukee and Cleveland. Eighteen games will constitute the championship series with each club.

Respectfully, W. S. MELIUS, 69 Harrison st. That DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is extensively used along the line of the Hudson River railroad company is shown from the following from Tarrytown. The writer is none other than Mr. D Revere, the station agent of the Hudson River railroad company at Tarrytown, a man well known in that community.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Bondoubt, N. Y. Dear Sir: For a long time I was troubled with sovere attacks of dizziness and bilind, sick headaches. I hought it was due to impure blood and a disordered state of the system. I was advised to try FAVORITE REMEDY. I did so, and have been completely cured. It's the best thing I ever heard of for any disorder of that nature, and I've recomfaneded it to many with like success.

A. DEREVERE.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is not confined in its sphere of usefulness to one state or locality, but is hailed as a boon by hundreds in every state, as the following letter from Milleville, N. J., will show:

Bills Brought up by the Marion ounty Delegation — The Irate Republicans—Gen-eral Notes.

Marion county was reached in the call of counties for bills in the house, yesterday afternoon, and each member of the delegation called up some measure of local importance, and all of them were passed, with one ex-ception. The bill limiting the tax levy to to 33 cents was named by Mr. Pendleton, and met with little opposition, and only five members voted against the city hall bill, viz., Messrs. Bailey, Dale, Mock of Wells, McMichael and Jewell. Since it was mended the bill simply authorizes the city to put up such a building on the ground ceded to it by the state for market-house purposes. Mr. Schley's bill to exempt from taxation shares in building and loan associations failed for want of a constitutional majority, being just one vote short, and will probably pass when again called up. Probably the most impor-tant bill of them all is that of Mr. Jameson, which makes it a felony, punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment, for any banker or bank official to make drafts on other banks where he has no credit, or to receive money on deposit when he knows that his bank is insolvent. It passed by a vote of 70 to 8, and it will probably meet with like favorable freatment in the sa a strong feeling for it there. in the senate, as there is The Journal yesterday printed the names of the members of the house who voted for and against Mr. Townsend's resolution to adjourn in fifteen days—all the republicans being included in the negative. A number of these gentlemen did not take the publica-tion at all kindly, claiming that it was in-tended to hold them up before the eyes of their constituents as trying to prolong the session and to prevent the disposition of the necessary measures. "The Journal claims to be the party organ," said one of them to The News reporter, "but it hasn't given us any support this session, and has frequently take occasion to criticise what we do and in fact, has gone so far as to intimate that the republicans and not the democrats are responsible for the special session. If they don't let up over at that office, they will hear something drop when Mr. McMullen's bill to aboli h the insurance steal comes up, for we are liable to unite with some of the democrats and push it through. There more ways than one of getting even with newspapers. It seems that the physicians of the and others who favor some kind of medical legislation, are again doomed to disappointment, for the house yesterday defeated Sena-tor Shiveley's bill which provides for the licensing of physicians, only after they have graduated from a reputable medical college, or have had the benefit of ten years practice. For the last ten years, determined efforts have been made to secure some such legislation, but all have failed, the nearest ap proach to success being at the session of 1879, when the Edwins bill passed both houses but was vetoed by Governor Williams.

The temporary loan bill for continuing the work on the state house, not only provides for a loan of $500,000 but also a continuation of the two cent tax levy for the same purpose, which will give an additional revenue $300,000. The commissioners think that $800,000 will be necessary for the next two years, and in that time, the building can be entirely completed, with the exception of the dome, and furnished throughout. The cost of construction thus far has been about $1,000, 000, with $200,000 additional for salaries of ners, plans and specifications, etc., and the most expensive part is yet to come.

In his speech against the medical bill yesterday, Representative Monk, of Wayne county, said he would support it, if any six intelligent members on the floor, would say that they would employ as physicians men who had taken but one course of lectures. Vhen it came his turn to vote, Mr. Copeland and five other genflemen arose in their places, and said they were willing to employ such physicians and insisted that the gentleman from Wayne should vote for the bill.

Mr. Monk got out of it by saying, that the condition was that six "intelligent" mem-

Senator Sellers is the latest aspirant for Mr. Magee, and he is said to have a number of members pledged to his support, but Sen-ator Weir is understood to still have the inside track. By the way, if Lieutenant Governor Manson is going to resign, it is time he should let that fact become generally known, so as to relieve the suspense. Odds and Ends In the City. Stone laying on the new capitol will be resumed next week.

in his pocket. Clarence Baumer, Willie Jones and Geo. Chatfield, three Richmond boys, were bound over to court yesterday for burglarizing Mather & Connor's skate factory. Baumer and Jones went down, and Chatfield gave the required bond of $100.

Dr. Connors, of Cincinnati, has been called n consultation on the case of President C. O. Thompson, of the Rose polytechnic school at Terre Haute. President Thompson has been dangerously ill from nervous prostration, induced by overwork. A long rest will probably be necessary to his restoration to health.

L. P. Bradford's residence, near Quercus Grove, Switzerland county, was burned Tuesday evening. Loss, $1,800; insured in the Continental for $1,000. Next morning Mrs. Christopher Lostetter's residence, situated near the same place, was also burned to the ground. The family barely escaped with their lives. No insurance.

William Breem, an aged man, who had a woman named Lonia Rogers keeping house for him in Columbus, was heard to screan late last evening, when the neighbors rushed in and found him in a dying condition from a dose of poison. He said Lonia did it, and expired. The police are searching for the girl, but she can not be found.

The mysterious disappearance of Daniel Hendricks, of Fountaintown, Shelby county, continues to excite the people of that neighborhood, and the more the subject is talked, the stronger the belief grows that Mr. Hendricks is not remaining away of his own free will. The presumption is that by some plan known only to crooks Mr. Hendricks roped into some out-of the-way place and dis-

He had been ticket agent since 1880 until last October, her Persident Meskey results to desire the when President Mackey, sought to claim the commissions paid to Talbott by other roads, when Talbott resigned. It is generally believed that Talbott is innocent of any irregularity, and that the suit is instigated by malice. He gave $2,000 bail.

A wagon and horse, belonging to Joseph Eckert, a country butcher, was found be-neath a trestle on the National road, a mille west of Terre Haute yesterday, having evidently rolled off the grade. A man's hat floating on the water gave the impression that Eckert had been drowned. Efforts to find the body have proved unavailing thus far. James All, a wood-chopper, living near Eckert, was seen with fresh meat, which had Eckert, was seen with fresh meat, which had been in Eckert's wagon. He said he had found it, but had not seen Eckert. All was arrested on suspicion of foul play.

High Praise.

High Praise.

A habitue of the brag restaurant of Chicago pays a high compliment to Indianapolis in this respect. He says the Sherman restaurant of this city excels anything in the west for the home-like taste in the food preparation, while the gentility of surroundings and the serving of it cannot be excelled. The feature which, however, most surprises this expert in such matters is the low prices maintained. He dwells on the necessity of first class materials and help throughout, in order to insure such results. throughout, in order to insure such results, and as such things can only be obtained by good wages, he doesn't see why it doesn't figure so on the bill of fare here as everywhere else. Still, said the caterer, he has a secret of his own in the matter, for it is conceded that he is making money.

Its Weight in Gold.

The aggregate production of gold in the United States of America, up to June, 1883, we have just been told on the authority of the Times, was 78,965,572 troy ounces. When we saw this particular weight of gold given as the accumulation of all preceding years, we were at once struck with the remarkable approximation of the weight given to what had just come to our knowledge was the output of cocoa in England by one firm (James Epps & Co.) for one year only, the last twelve months, it being 86,403,333 troy ounces, or 2,645 avoirdupoise tons, and, on the moment, we could not withstand recalling to mind the old adage—"Worth its weight in gold."

The preparation for carnet cleaning known Its Weight in Gold.

The preparation for carpet cleaning known as the Acme Renovator is enjoying some brilliant triumphs and is the most astonishing thing in its way that has ever liant triumphs and is the most astonishing thing in its way that has ever made its appearance. Without any ingredient of ammonia or other hurtful quality that may be used in washing face, teeth or satin fabric; with an appearance like starch prepared for use, it is spread upon the carnet and brushed into it and then scraped of, loaded with whatever of dirt was in the carpet, however filthy; and such is its power for absorbing dirt that even the webb and warp of the carpet is left clean through to the floor or lining, and not only so, but the original color to the most delicate tint and shade is brought out.
